

Possible 23-Cent Tax Hike Seen for Springs

Main Increase Indicated for County Level

A tax boost ranging from 17 to 23 cents appeared a certainty for Palm Springs property owners today following action on both city and county budgets for fiscal 1962-63.

The 17-cent hike was indicated at the county level as the Board of Supervisors adopted a preliminary budget of $39.4 million for the year.

This is spending that Administrative Officer Robert T. Andersen estimates will call for a new county levy of $2.24 per $100 of assessed valuation, a figure subject to several revisions before the levy is set in August.

Another Bite

Addition of at least another four cents was indicated as Palm Springs City Councilmen ended a session that had been announced as their final budget hearing.

But the councilmen left their labors with hope that Acting City Manager Charles Kasmer and Finance Director Shelby Langford might be able to cut expenditures by $40,000 before the city budget comes up for adoption.

Such a reduction would give city property owners a levy the same as last year's of $2.01 per $100.

Slight Cut

The Palm Springs budget session started out with scheduled expenditures totaling $1,655,885, which would entail a tax raise of $2.073 per $100.

And at the close of the four-hour session the total stood at $1,655,000, which would require a levy of $2.055.

Debate on the city's spending ranged completely through municipal activities, with cuts and additions in many departments.

With the city's anticipated $80 million total assessed valuation the councilmen were faced with the need for a reduction of $8,000 in expenditures for each penny of tax cut.

And even with increased revenues expected from the state because of the new census total the councilmen were unable to agree on the reductions that would be required to "hold the line" on the tax rate.

Red China Preparing For Attack

HONG KONG (UPI)—Communist China was reported mobilizing workers today in Canton, where angry peasants rioted this month, ostensibly to meet any Nationalist Chinese attack on the mainland.

Canton Radio said every worker in the city was being placed on a "voluntary mobilization" footing pending orders to go into action against a possible Nationalist invasion.

The Defense Ministry at Taipei reported that Communist artillery on the mainland shelled the Nationalist offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu with 178 rounds Monday.

There was no indication whether the fire was returned. It marked the eighth time this month that Quemoy has been bombarded and the fourth time for Matsu.

Officials in Washington and London have expressed concern at intelligence reports which depict a military build-up in Red China's Fukien Province, across Formosa Strait from the Nationalist island.

The Cantonese announcer claimed there had been "extremely good response" among workers to anti-American and anti-Nationalist rallies held in the city the past two days.

Brown-Nixon Debate on TV Slated in October

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown and Republican Richard M. Nixon have agreed to face each other in a television debate next October.

Brown made his formal invitation to Nixon Monday, saying the debate should occur "on network evening time and on the network or combination of network and independent stations that would reach the largest possible audience."

Nixon replied, "I am delighted that Gov. Brown, after months of

Solons Dicker on Bond Issue

Decide Whether To Resubmit in November Vote

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Legislature, beset by election-year partisan differences, met today to decide whether to give voters a second chance in November to approve a $270 million bond issue for state construction.

Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown personally went before the lawmakers to appeal for bipartisan support for a new bond issue, 80 per cent of which is ticketed for higher education.

Republican assemblymen, meanwhile, were almost solid in opposition to Brown's one-package plan. They contended that the amount of the bond issue should be reduced or else the bond proposal should be split on the November ballot to separate funds for colleges and the state university and money which would go for prisons, mental hospitals and other facilities.

In the June 5th primary, voters rejected by almost 900,000 votes a state construction bond issue (Proposition 3), almost identical to the proposal Brown submitted to the legislators today.

Republicans dispute Brown's conclusions and said that the voters' position was clear in June—that either the amount of the bond issue must be reduced or else the voters should get a chance to ballot separately on construction money for education and funds which would go for prisons, mental hospitals, forest fire camps and other facilities.

Brown, in his message to the legislators, came out strongly against splitting the bond issue on the November ballot. Republicans disputed Brown's conclusions and said that the voters' position was clear in June—that either the amount of the bond issue must be reduced or else the voters should get a chance to ballot separately on construction money for education and funds which would go for prisons, mental hospitals, forest fire camps and other facilities.

Narcotics Killed Central Figure In Court Ruling

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Police records showed today that the central figure in the case which led to striking down a section of California law punishing addiction to narcotics was found dead of an apparent overdose of narcotics last year.

Police said Walter Lawrence Robinson, 28, was found dead in an alley on Aug. 5. He had been arrested 16 times by Los Angeles police, dating back to Dec. 27.

Other arrests included battery, burglary, gambling, assault with a deadly weapon, drunkenness, and for being absent without leave from the Air Force.

$8 Million in Construction Slowed or Stopped in Spa

IT LOOKED LIKE SUNDAY when this construction shot was taken at El Mirador Hotel this morning. Work has been at a standstill on the million dollar project for more than a week because of a building trades labor dispute. The archway is above the hotel's famed swimming pool. (Desert Sun Photo by Bob Nims)

Work Expected In Full Swing By Tomorrow

Construction work on more than $8 million worth of projects seriously slowed or stopped entirely in Palm Springs by a building trades labor dispute is expected to resume full swing tomorrow.

That's the word from local builders today following announcement in Los Angeles that agreement was tentatively negotiated for craftsmen working in $2 billion worth of construction in 11 Southern California counties.

Locally the biggest projects affected had been:

The Big Ones

1. The Mt. San Jacinto Aerial Tramway, a $5 million contract where carpenters went off the job June 19.

2. El Mirador Hotel, a $1,200,000 expansion under way by the Ernest W. Hahn Construction Co., has been completely shut down.

3. The new Spa Hotel where only plumbers and earthmoving crews were at work today on a $2.5 million facility.

Numerous other smaller jobs in the desert area were slowed or stopped by the dispute, but the total loss in job time and wages had not been computed.

Bright Spot

One bright spot locally was at Desert Hospital where work on the new $244,800 wing continued unabated.

Resumption of work was signaled in a report from the L. E. Dixon Co., builders of the tram. They said their carpenters had reported they will return to the job tomorrow.

United Press reported the agreement is subject to ratification by the workers and that details of the pact were not disclosed.

Taking part in the negotiations that ended early today were representatives of the Carpenters and Cement Masons Union and four employer associations.

Workers were expected to return to their jobs starting today, a spokesman said.

Lockouts

Many of the 55,000 members of the carpenters' union walked off the job last week and the rest were denied work by contractors who had agreed that a strike against one would be treated as a strike against all.

About 5,000 cement masons left their jobs Friday in a similar development. The operators agreed to continue work until July 1 while negotiations continued.

In San Diego, Federal Mediator V. Wayne Kenaston reported some progress in talks with cement masons and contractors Monday in the strike-lockout in that county.

Court Sets Price for Spa School

A price tag of $357,750 has been placed on the property the Palm Springs Unified School District wants to buy from Culver Nichols as the 26-acre site for a second junior high school in the city.

It was set by a jury in Indian superior court yesterday at the close of a condemnation suit filed against Nichols last summer by the school district.

The jury ruling set $12,500 per acre as the rate at which Nichols must sell two pieces of property, one measuring 24.42 acres and another of 1.88 acres.

The proposed school site is vacant property at Vista Chino and Avenida Caballeros.

In addition to the purchase price, the court ordered that the school district pay an additional $29,000 in severance damage to 14.5 acres of adjacent land which would decrease in value from separation to a smaller tract.

School district officials contended during the trial that the land was worth from $6,500 to $7,000 an acre. Nichols testified before Judge Merrill Brown that he valued the property at $20,000 per acre.

School officials have been proceeding with plans to build a $1.7 million school plant on the site despite the defeat of a bond issue June 5 to finance construction.

Informed American sources said the secretary of state was well satisfied with his discussions to date, in Paris, Bonn, Berlin, Rome and London.

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE Base (UPI)—A 13-man Air Force combat crew today successfully launched an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile from a semihard emplacement in a training exercise.

Flight Engineer Strike Appears Certain Today

NEW YORK (UPI)—Resumption of the flight engineers strike against Pan American World Airways late today appeared certain unless a federal judge issues an injunction, a move considered unlikely by observers.

The Flight Engineers International Association (FEIA) said it would resume last Saturday's brief, court-halted walkout if Judge George Rosling lifts a temporary restraining order after a hearing scheduled for 2 p.m. EDT today in Brooklyn.

Hopes that government intervention would put off a Pan American strike and resolve the flight engineers' walkout which has grounded Eastern Air Lines since Saturday were nil.

Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg said negotiations were deadlocked after meetings with representatives of both airlines and the flight engineers in Washington Monday. He called off further meetings indefinitely.

Pan American, the nation's largest international carrier, would not say today whether it would attempt to continue service—as it said it would last Saturday—if the engineers walk out again.

The strike was ended Saturday before the decision could be put to the test.

However, a strike against Pan American would raise the immediate possibility of congressional action to set up machinery to prevent jurisdictional disputes in the airline industry—which essentially is the base of the trouble between the engineers and the airlines.

The FEIA fears loss of jobs to the Air Line Pilots Association when jet cockpit crews are cut from four men to three.

Shippers, Union In Agreement on 3-Year Contract

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Pacific Maritime Association and the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union Monday agreed to a three-year contract which includes a pay raise of 44 cents an hour.

The agreement is subject to ratification by the union's 17,000 members by July 25. About 3,000 of the members work in the Los Angeles-Long Beach Harbors.

The contract calls for an 18-cent hourly increase on July 30 with the basic scale at $3.06 for a six-hour day and $4.59 for overtime. Longshoremen normally work two hours overtime every day. The second increase of 13 cents an hour is effective June 17, 1963, and the final 13-cent increase will be made June 15, 1964.

WORST SINCE DESEGREGATION

Controversy Over Prayer Ruling

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court's ruling against prayer in public schools today stirred one of the most far-reaching controversies since its desegregation decision of 1954.

The reaction of religious leaders ranged from approbation to shock and dismay.

The president of the American Jewish Committee, A. M. Sonnabend of Boston, welcomed the ruling as a blow in behalf of "the basic constitutional principle of separation of church and state."

The Roman Catholic archbishop of New York, Francis Cardinal Spellman, said he was "shocked and frightened" by a decision that "strikes at the very heart of the Godly tradition in which America's children have for so long been raised."

Protestants lined up on both sides of the question. In Washington, Dr. C. Emanuel Carlson, executive director of the Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs, said he was not disturbed by the elimination of "required prayers" from schools because he has never felt that rote recital of such prayers has any real religious value for children.

But the Rev. Dr. Harold R. Albert, president of the Pittsburgh area Council of Churches, said any court decision which has the effect of "subtracting religious expression" from American life is a step in "a disastrous direction."

The high court's 6-1 ruling was handed down Monday. It dealt specifically with a 22-word nonsectarian prayer, known as "The Lord's Prayer" (See Controversy, Page 2)

Living Cost Steady But Plenty High

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Labor Department reported today that living costs held steady at a record-high level and the average factory worker's take home pay climbed to an all-time peak in May.

Lower costs of food, solid fuel and gasoline offset higher prices of medical care, housing and used cars to halt a three-month rise in the consumer price index.

This left the index unchanged at its all-time high of 105.2 per cent of 1957-59 prices. In other words, it now costs $10.52 to buy the same goods and services that were available for $10 a few years ago.

Robert J. Myers, deputy commissioner of labor statistics, said the May figures were a "welcome little respite" from substantial advances recorded in February, March and April.

The department reported that spendable earnings of the average factory production worker hit a new peak last month because the work week and hourly earnings both increased.

Average take home pay of a factory worker with three dependents rose to $86.05 and the similar figure for a single man climbed to $78.37 a week. These earnings are about 50 cents higher than April and $4 a week more than a year ago.

Protestants lined up on both sides of the question. In Washington, Dr. C. Emanuel Carlson, executive director of the Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs, said he was not disturbed by the elimination of "required prayers" from schools because he has never felt that rote recital of such prayers has any real religious value for children.

Regents' Prayer," which has been officially prescribed for use in New York state schools. The prayer says:

"Almighty God, we acknowledge our dependence upon Thee, and we beg Thy blessings upon us, our parents, our teachers and our country."

Forbidden By Constitution

Speaking for the majority, Justice Hugo L. Black said the official adoption of this prayer by a state government amounts to an "establishment of religion," which is forbidden by the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

That was true, he said, even though the prayer was "denominationally neutral" and participation by students was on a strictly voluntary basis. Black asserted that the founding fathers wrote the First Amendment into the Constitution for the express purpose of preventing the government from sponsoring any kind of "official religion." He declared:

"Government in this country, be it state or federal, is without power to prescribe by law any particular form of prayer which is to be used as an official prayer in carrying on any program of governmentally-sponsored religious activity."

State laws prescribing the use of the Lord's Prayer in public schools would seem quite obviously to fall under that ban.

Bible Reading Not Affected

The decision did not touch directly on Bible reading in public schools. That issue is raised, however, in three other cases which have been appealed to the Supreme Court from Pennsylvania, Maryland and Florida.

In a lone dissent, Justice Potter Stewart said he could not see how an "official religion" would be established "by letting those who want to say a prayer say it." He pointed out that the Supreme Court itself opens every session with its crier saying: "God save the United States and this honorable court." He also noted that both Houses of Congress open their daily sessions with prayers, and that every President since George Washington has begun his term of office by asking "the protection and help of God."

May Lend Impetus

One effect of the decision may be to give fresh impetus to a drive, already started among conservative Protestant groups, to write an amendment into the Constitution proclaiming the United States to be a "Christian nation" and giving full legal sanction to religious expressions in public schools and other governmental activities.

This so-called "Christian Amendment" has been opposed by many of the major Protestant bodies as a fatal departure from the tradition of church-state separation and religious freedom. But it has outspoken support among numerous smaller fundamentalist groups, who have cited previous lower court rulings against prayer and Bible reading in schools as evidence that a change in the Constitution is needed to keep America "a nation under God."

Testimony in Sol Estes Case Expected Today

PECOS, Tex. (UPI)—The defense resumed questioning prospective jurors today in a surprise trial of Billie Sol Estes on charges of stealing $827,577 in fertilizer tank deals. The jury is expected to be completed and the taking of testimony started today.

The state finished questioning veniremen Monday. Estes' lawyers questioned veniremen until midnight and approved 20 already qualified by prospecting attorneys.

At last report, 16 veniremen qualified by the state remained to be questioned by the defense. District Judge J.H. Starley will pick a 12-man jury from a list of veniremen that both state and defense qualify.

Estes sat calmly in court in a dark suit, doodling on a sheet of paper.

Estes was brought to trial Monday at his request on the eight-count indictment. The first indictment for Estes to be tried on charges of fraudulently taking a conditional sales contract from farmer Thomas Bell in July, 1961.

Teenagers Hit Home Pool in Vandalism Act

Knocking down part of a fence surrounding a swimming pool owned by Harry L. Bernstein of 825 S. Riverside Drive, six to eight teenagers proceeded to throw everything in sight into the pool early Monday morning, police reported.

Three lounges, two chairs, an umbrella table, umbrella, and several large stones that took two men to remove them from the pool. Pads on the lounges were ruined by the water.

Bernstein stated that this was one of the worst cases of vandalism he had seen since he had been in this area. "I can't understand why they had to tear down the fence to get into the pool, the gate was wide open," he said.

Speedy Marines Roll Over Car

CATHEDRAL CITY — Driving too fast to stop, two marines skidded their car into a roll-over and came to rest against a telephone pole last night at the intersection of Wonder Palms and Davall Drive, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The driver, Gordon W. Corey, 21, and his passenger Michael Van Wilkinson, 19, both of 29 Palms Marine Base, were taken to Desert Hospital for treatment.

The hospital reported no injury and no treatment. The boys walked for a ride back to the base.

A honey blond with green eyes, Sheri stands 5 foot, 6 inches, weighs 115 pounds. She was graduated from high school earlier this month. Extremely active, she was head cheerleader, vice president of her class, a member of the drama club, scholarship society, and senior representative.

Earlier in the year she was a Queen Scheherazade princess at the National Date Festival at Indio; then a runner-up in the National Orange Show contest at San Bernardino.

To win the Farmer's Daughter bonnet, Sheri will have to outscore the other candidates in five unique contests. These include milking, sewing, baking, tractor driving, and a mystery event which could be almost anything. Last year it was taffy pulling.

More Action Against Business Mergers Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sharply increased Justice Department activity against business mergers was suggested today by a resounding government victory in the Supreme Court in a shoe industry case.

The ruling was part of a voluminous outpouring of opinions and various other actions which brought the high court's 1961-62 term to a close Monday.

The court acted on lunch counter sit-ins, sale and mailing of obscene material, congressional contempt, narcotics addiction and school segregation.

It also handed down one of the most far-reaching religious freedom decisions in recent times by outlawing use of an official state prayer in New York public schools.

The justices now disperse for the summer. Barring a special emergency term, they will not return to the bench until Oct. 1.

Government Won Ruling

Besides the shoe industry decision, the government also won an antitrust ruling that officials acting for corporations are subject to the stiff penalties of the Sherman antitrust laws as well as the less severe Clayton antitrust law. The Supreme Court reinstated several Sherman Act charges against corporation officers which were dismissed by lower courts.

Chief Justice Earl Warren wrote 51 pages in the shoe case, analyzing for the first time 1950 amendments to the Clayton Act designed to plug loopholes in the 1914 statute and bring it up to date.

Warren declared it was the intent of Congress to curb "tendencies toward concentration in industry" in their beginnings, "particularly when those tendencies are being accelerated through giant steps striding across a hundred cities at a time."

The opinion said the court agreed with the government that so far as the shoe industry was concerned "this is an appropriate place at which to call a halt."

The judgment means divorce-ment of the Brown Shoe Co. of St. Louis and the G. R. Kinney Co., the nation's largest retail chain.

Victory of Sorts

The Justice Department also won a victory of sorts in a price discrimination case involving two big milk distributors in the Chicago area — Bowman Dairy Co. and the Borden Co. A lower court had accepted the companies' cost justification for price discounts to chain stores but the Supreme Court ordered more proceedings. The case is 11 years old.

In the field of obscenity, the court did not act the way the Justice Department suggested. Instead, it set aside a post office order barring from the mails three magazines appealing to male homosexuals.

The court ruled that the magazines were not offensive or indecent enough to be obscene. A minority of three even said the postmaster general did not have authority from Congress to determine what is too obscene to be mailed.

The court agreed to examine next term a book publishers' challenge to a Rhode Island commission established in 1956 to discourage sales of obscene literature. The publishers are Bantam Books Inc., Dell Publishing Co., Inc., Pocket Books, Inc., and the New American Library of World Literature, Inc.

OAS Offensive in Oran Continues

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI)—The European Secret Army Organization resumed its Oran offensive today as weary firefighters brought under control the huge oil fire which terrorists set Monday.

Plastic bombs shattered telephone exchanges in two districts, cutting communications with two major police stations. A building housing the departmental headquarters of the Health Ministry was burned.

Official sources estimated that nearly half the original European population of 300,000 in Oran now has left the western port city of France, 150,000 of them since June 5.

Unless the current wave of OAS scorched earth terrorism ends quickly, the number leaving is expected to rise sharply. Reliable sources said that while the fires in the oil storage area of the port were still raging this morning, all danger of the fire spreading now had ceased. No casualties were reported.

For a time the flames threatened to engulf a wide area of the city and harbor but officials said they believed they had contained the blaze to a section of 10 storage tanks.

The blaze lighted up the entire waterfront and smothered a four-square mile area with thick smoke. At times firemen could get no closer than 200 yards.

Gen. Joseph Katz, Oran military commander, took charge of the battle and flew over the area in a helicopter. Extra firefighters were sent in from the big Mers-El-Kebir naval base.

Residents fled homes near the fire area, some of them crying in panic. Ten thousand persons flocked to the area to watch the battle.

"It is criminal," said one bystander bitterly.

"It is normal," said another. "All must burn."

Ships in Oran's busy harbor blew their whistles and upped anchor to get away from the flames licking hundreds of feet into the air.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early morning finds considerable tension and some pretty difficult conditions in effect. However, it soon changes so you have to keep watchful of the time when this occurs which is shortly before noon, after which time you have a big chance to put some new, practical arrangements, personal or business, into effect successfully.

ARIES (Birthdays from Mar. 21 to Apr. 19)—Some friend could easily impose upon you today and make it difficult to attend to important business, if you permit. Be polite, but firm. Increase abundance.

TAURUS (Birthdays from Apr. 20 to May 20)—A pretty difficult situation may occur in early A. M., but patience sees you through nicely. Find wise solution. Then go after personal aims with confidence.

GEMINI (Birthdays from May 21 to June 21)—Read your paper thoroughly in early A. M., and don't dash off to something hard. Getly worthwhile. Plan future constructively. Be practical and don't confide in others.

MOON CHILDREN (Birthdays from June 22 to July 21)—Regular advisors and good friends do not seem to agree on certain projects you have planned. Take more time in reaching a decision. Reach personal goals socially in P. M.

LEO (Birthdays from July 22 to Aug. 21)—Morning finds you floundering whether to follow advice of some influential person or a friend of long standing. Higher-up is too ruthless for you. Side with associate.

VIRGO (Birthdays from Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Morning begins by your feeling that you are too bogged down with work to get off to new and interesting outlets. Later, take the opportunity. Make big headway.

LIBRA (Birthdays from Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Do not concentrate on play during A. M., but seriously concentrate upon your obligations and how best to discharge them. Be on time. Find modern methods.

SCORPIO (Birthdays from Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Try to be objective this morning in the handling of family affairs and don't let them disturb you. Then garner information you need after lunch. Have fun in P. M.

SAGITTARIUS (Birthdays from Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—Correspondence in A. M., may bring more labor and be quite frustrating, if you permit yourself this mood. Do what is constructive instead. Accomplish much.

CAPRICORN (Birthdays from Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Afternoon is best time to start preparing for a happy week-end, planning a trip, setting up appointments, etc. Get hobbies perfected. Attend regular duties in A. M.

AQUARIUS (Birthdays from Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Close ties and associates are apt to argue quite seriously over what is, after all, your own business in A. M. Listen politely, but do as you wish. Be devoted in P. M.

PISCES (Birthdays from Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)—Get rid of that depressed feeling this morning and start contacting those whom you consider as friends and allies. After lunch, they follow your ideas. Be practical.

If Your Child Is Born Today he, or she, is one of those delightful children who soon start asking rather deep philosophical, technical or scientific questions and expect the truth. Be well informed and don't try to evade answers. The imagination here is also remarkable and there will be fine ability to bring creative ideas down to a practical level. Then fine success follows.

Simms-Eastvold Journey Interrupted for Opening

Singer Ginny Simms and attorney-developer Don Eastvold will interrupt their honeymoon briefly to officiate at a ceremony formally opening their new resort community on Lakes Shames and Crookneck near Motley, Minn.

Miss Simms, who won fame with Kay Kyser's band, and Eastvold, former Washington State attorney general and onetime gubernatorial candidate, were wed Friday night at the luxurious Palm Springs home of the bride.

They are scheduled to raise the United States and Minnesota flags over the $1,000,000 real estate project (known as the Ginny Simms Lakes Estates) at ceremonies expected to attract H.S. and Minnesota state officials.

The singer was particularly

They're Harvesting at College of the Desert

By R. L. McCOWAN

PALM DESERT—Very few college's ever harvest 200,000 pounds of dates, but that is what the College of the Desert will do this year, and possibly for some time in the future. The college is also looking for a buyer for their 15 acres of grapes.

Not being a college of agriculture, but a California State Junior College is what makes it unusual for its farm production.

Crossed Fingers Classes are scheduled to start in September, but the faculty members are keeping their fingers crossed, even when assured by the contractors that they are right on time in progress with the buildings. At present nine buildings are under construction and are to be complete for partial use by the start of the school year.

Advertising in the New York papers for vacationers in Palm Desert have brought many replies from high school graduates who read "Home of College of the Desert" in the ad.

Dr. Howard Impeccoven, who is now taking care of admissions and registrations, remarked on the wonderful cooperation and help the college has received in regard to the offer of housing and apartments for both the faculty and students who will fill Palm Desert in the Fall.

Some 350 applications are now on file for students who will attend, coming from all parts of the U.S. and several foreign countries such as India and Peru. Some 25 per cent of the applications to date are from students in the desert resort area.

The board of trustees have an eight machine IBM installation, which will be used on grading and records for the total of more than 500 students expected to attend the college.

President McCall heads the faculty of 35 on the new campus that reaches the amount of some $4 million in value and 160 acres in size.

Deadline Nears On Claim Filing For Disability "A person may file a claim for disability insurance benefits and establish a period of disability from the first day his illness or injury occurred," said Raymond Majjala field representative of the San Bernardino Social Security Office.

The 1960 amendments to the social security law established June 30, 1962 as a cut off date. After June 30, the earliest period of disability that can be established for a worker regardless of the actual onset of his disability, is 18 months prior to the date he files his claim.

LARGE PASSENGER

LONDON (UPI)—British actor Willoughby Goddard, who will fly to New York next month to perform in the stage play "Oliver," is so large he needs two seats.

British Overseas Air Corp. has agreed to accommodate him for the price of one seat.

HIGH WATER BILL

MORECAMBE, England (UPI)—Farmer William Young always knew his water bills were a bit high—and now he knows why. Workmen disconnecting an old water system discovered that Young's water meter was connected to a local swimming pool. For six years he has been paying for the thousands of gallons of water used by the pool.

Town council officials said they would refund Young's money.

HAWAII IN HARLEM

NEW YORK (UPI)—A touch of Hawaii will grace the east Harlem section of Manhattan today when residents and guests of a housing cooperative converge on a 70-foot table for an exotic luau.

The Hawaiian-type picnic will feature everything from fried rice to pizza pie.

NOT QUITE SURE

PANGBOURNE, England (UPI)—Gilbert Beale's birthday comes up next month, but he isn't certain which day it is or which birthday. He figures he'll be around 95.

To solve the difficulty, Beale has decided to celebrate his birthday every day in July. That way he'll be sure not to miss it.

Fire Hazard Forces Closing Of Forest Lands

Effective July 1, portions of the San Bernardino National Forest will be closed to the public for the summer months, according to Don Bauer forest supervisor.

Increasing fire hazard has made it necessary to take such action. Every possible fire prevention precaution must be taken to protect these watersheds, Bauer stated.

Maps showing those portions of the national forest that will remain open may be obtained from forest ranger stations.

BELLOWS GAZETTE

ON THE EVENING OF MAY 18, 1910, the elite of New York society watched Halley's Comet while attending roof parties atop many of the city's leading hotels. At these gatherings many Bellows products, including our fine whiskeys, were served.

TODAY, our customers (many of famous families who have been among our clientele for more than six generations) tell us no Kentucky whiskeys match our Club Bourbon or our Partners Choice in quality and flavour.

Indeed none equals them in value. You have but to price and taste a bottle of either to ascertain that today, as for 132 years, only the best is labelled Bellows.

Our BELLOWS CLUB BOURBON offers the qualities sought after in fine Kentucky bourbon. Mellow and most flavorful—it typifies the emphasis we place on quality, yet it is not premium in price.

$4.77 FIFTH

Our BELLOWS PARTNERS CHOICE has won favor as the choicest of all blended whiskeys. You will find it to be matchless in flavor and immensely satisfying—both in taste and price.

Eccles Is An Expert On Dispute

WASHINGTON WINDOW
By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If anyone can make come alive the Federal Reserve chairmanship dispute between President Kennedy and the Republicans, that man is Marriner S. Eccles of Salt Lake City, Utah.

The President wants the terms of Federal Reserve Board chairmanship to coincide with presidential terms. That is to say, Kennedy believes a president should be able to name a board chairman who would be friendly to administration policies; one who would collaborate with the administration in policies having to do with credit and the money supply.

A Republican policy statement last week opposed the President on that. The Republicans said "a stable dollar is not likely to result if control of the Federal Reserve System rests in the White House."

Knows the Subject
Eccles would be the Republicans' best witness on that. He was for many years a reserve system governor and for years, 1936-48, he was chairman.

Chairman Eccles tangled with President Truman because Eccles finally balked at converting the Federal Reserve System into what he called an engine of inflation to help the Truman administration hold the line on interest rates. It was quite a battle and it cost Eccles his job.

It was inevitable that sound money man Eccles would have trouble with HST. The White House put pressure on Eccles and the reserve governors and under it he folded for a time. Discussing the battle some years afterwards, Eccles said:

Forced Inflation
"A large part of the post-war price inflation was a result of the Federal Reserve purchasing billions of dollars of government securities at fixed prices in order to prevent an increase in the interest rates. The Treasury and the White House, over the strong protests of the Federal Reserve, required this action to be taken. This created an excess amount of bank reserves which brought about an inflationary expansion of commercial credit and of the money supply."

That was Eccles' position then and no doubt that is his position now. If so, he would be compelled to oppose any change in the term office of board chairman or any other change in the Federal Reserve System that would tend to lodge policy control in the White House.

If the Republicans know what they are about, they will invite Eccles to appear before the congressional banking and currency committees if and when there is consideration of legislation to effect the change now proposed by President Kennedy.

STANDING by at Cape Canaveral is this unusual space vehicle recovery system designed and built by FMC Corp., Ordnance Div., San Jose, for the Project Mercury program. Pictured during tests at San Jose, the vehicle is a standard M113 aluminum armored personnel carrier, coated with insulation and equipped with hydraulically operated arms and blade to pick up space craft in event of misfiring. If the booster rocket for a manned launch were to explode on the pad, the vehicle could move into the area, shove away any debris, and scoop up and grasp the 2-ton space craft, removing it and its occupants from the pad. Pianos Are Coming Back Into Homes

By JESSE BOGUE

NEW YORK (UPI)—The player piano with its paper rolls and foot power action may have filled a need for easy home music before radio and television yet it was not an unmitigated blessing, says William N. Herleman.

"A whole generation didn't learn to play the piano," he said, "and it is a basic musical instrument. Today pianos—real pianos—are making their way into the home again, and I believe it will be a billion dollar industry within the next decade."

He estimated five million persons may be taking piano lessons today. Herleman, of DeKalb, Ill., is executive vice president of the Wurlitzer Co. The DeKalb division, last year sold more conventional pianos for home and institutional use than ever before in their history.

While the 88-key piano remains the basic product of the industry, Herleman said that the electronic organ is a major sales item; and the company has just introduced a new electronic piano, with 64 notes. It may be operated by plug in wires or it may be operated with a 10-pound battery pack.

Villagers Help Launch Club Season

WOMEN of the Desert

Edited by Lee Christopher

6 The Desert Sun

Tuesday, June 26, 1962
Palm Springs, California

SEEN AT THE PARTY from Cathedral City were Ed Donahue (he's the new Lions Club president), Mrs. Donahue (she is prexy of her Chi Theta Sorority), and their son, Dennis McNamara (and he leads the Pep Band at UC in Riverside).

IN THE GOOD OLD SUMMERTIME

Hooray!

Happily heralding the arrival of their very first grandchild—a boy—are the Jack Feinsteins of 1860 Apache Circle. The heir apparent is the son of Dr. and Mrs. George Feinstein of San Francisco; he put in his appearance last Sunday about three weeks ahead of time, and at this writing, he hasn't as yet been named. He doesn't need a name, according to the senior button-busting Feinsteins; he is OUR GRANDSON!

A "Treat for Dad" party was held recently by the Palm Springs Junior Woman's Club in the Polo Grounds Clubhouse to blast off the series of summer socials.

The decorating committee, which included the Mesdames Richard Hill, Ronald Jahelka, Gerald Pelton, Kenneth Davis, Richard Algier, and William Shupe, covered the clubhouse walls with white paper, and then added striking black silhouettes of hats, ties, guns, bowling pins and balls, boats, pipes, and fishing poles. Gay balloons and black and white streamers completed the party decor. Invitations in the shape of a man's hat were mailed prior to the affair.

Many Juniors made appropriate "corsages" for their husbands. One, for example, was fashioned of a record decorated with glitter and musical notes made from chenille pipe-cleaners. A second was a glittered trophy proclaiming "the world's greatest husband"; on a third, a tea bag inscribed "my cup of tea" caught the eye. Pipe-cleaners spelled out the name of another husband and appeared as smoke coming from a miniature cornucopia pipe; still another clever creation combined a miniature antique pistol with army equipment to represent the husband's army reserve status.

Attending the party were the Sid Watsons, Ronald Jahelkas, Mrs. Kenneth Davis, the Richard Hills, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kimberly, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Garcia, the William Shupes, the Gerald Peltons, Mr. and Mrs. George Marshall, and the William Ridleys.

Guests from Palm Springs included the Wes Andersons, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hilliary, Mr.

HEAP BIG CHIEF and his Chiefess are Kay and Carol Hakes, whose more-or-less authentic costumes were among the most colorful at the beach luau.

and Mrs. Ross Dille, Mr. and Mrs. John Neil, the Jeff Shaws, and Ron Studebaker. From Wilmington came Miss Linda Murchison and Bill Vance; from Long Beach, Miss Carolyn Kimberly; from Riverside, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kibbe; and from Los Angeles, Mrs. Jean Whitman. The next summer social being planned by the Mesdames Anthony Rizzotto, James Thompson, Sid Watson, Joseph Garcia, and Ronald Jahelka will be a family campout-picnic in July.

Members and Guests Gather For a Salton Seaside Luau

They may not have been particularly authentic, but the costumes worn to the big luau last Saturday evening at the North Shore Beach Yacht Club were certainly imaginative and colorful. Saluting the start of North Shore's third summer season, the party drew hundreds of members and guests not only from this area, but also from as far away as Los Angeles. Particularly enjoying the Polynesian setting were the Ernest Borgnines (with Katy Jurado's dark beauty strikingly enhanced by her deep-hued sarong).

Receiving congratulations from everybody were Ginny Simms and her husband of just one day, Don Eastvold, who returned to the scene of their wedding reception held in the Commodore Room of the yacht club just 24 hours before. Also in their party were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dormer D. Simms of Yucca Valley, and Ish Kabibble, who proved he has lost none of his magic on the trumpet when he played several numbers with an appreciative orchestra.

A star-studded night, an exotic setting, Hawaiian entertainment, and tantalizingly-aromaed food showed that club manager Trav Rogers still has a deft hand at giving a party.

TAHITIAN TERPSICHORE — The Johannes Andersens of Rancho Mirage were among the party-goers dancing to the strains of the Polynesian orchestra.

Card Party Dated By Yucca Valley Women's Club

A card party at the Yucca Valley Women's Club is scheduled for Thursday beginning at 11 o'clock in the clubhouse on Onaga Trail at Fox. Dessert and coffee will be served; members and guests may bring sandwiches.

Bridge, canasta, and heck will be played, with a prize awarded to the winner at each table. The party is open to the public. There will be the usual donation.

During summer months the delightful, barely-tart flavor of well-chilled canned apple sauce gains in favor. Here is a way to make it a hit every time: Blend a bit of nutmeg and brown sugar through apple sauce. Top with scoop of softened ice cream.

Weekly Winners Named in Duplicate Bridge Club Play

At the last weekly session of the Desert Duplicate Bridge Club, winners were:

North-South: Dr. L. L. Laughlin and Myron Zobel, first; Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Trackman, second; Mrs. William Cooper and Betty Reissman, third; and Gertrude Markland and Margaret Elser, fourth.

East-West: Mrs. L. L. Wessel and Mrs. D. D. Raffee, first; Mrs. J. C. Williams and Mrs. R. A. Harter, second; Mrs. M. M. Dunckel and C. G. Stahls, third; and Jessie Barrington and Mary Beth Graves, fourth.

Nine tables were in play. The duplicate bridge group meets at the Pavilion under the sponsorship of the Palm Springs Recreation Department.

Switch Failure Kills Power in Three States

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—A new switch that proved faulty was blamed today for a two-hour power failure which affected several million persons in parts of three states.

Everyman II Now Skirts Test Zone

HONOLULU (UPI)—The California pacifists aboard the nuclear protest vessel Everyman II skirted the Johnston Island test zone today, with a Coast Guard cutter close behind.

The 28-foot ketch was reported cruising at about three knots less than 23 miles from the test danger zone, which extends to within 150 miles of Hawaii from Johnston—800 miles southwest of the 50th state.

The pacifists include Dr. Monte Steadman, San Francisco; C. George Benello, Berkeley, and Franklin Zahn, Pomona. The voyage is sponsored by the Committee for Nonviolent Action, a nationwide organization.

The three Californians planned the voyage from Honolulu after another protest vessel, the Everyman I, was intercepted outside San Francisco's Golden Gate. Its three-man crew is serving 30-day jail sentences for defying a court order to depart for the test area.

The departure of Everyman II was delayed by a court order which forbade the Californians to sail from Honolulu. However, Federal Judge Martin Pence permitted the vessel to sail Saturday as long as the crew stayed outside the test danger zone.

The Everyman II departed from a harbor near Waikiki, with the Coast Guard cutter Ironwood about a mile and one-half astern.

Pair of Vehicles Burglarized in Palm Springs

Thefts from two vehicles were reported to Palm Springs police last night. Wilbur L. Brubaker, 71-814 San Jacinto, Rancho Mirage, left his car parked at the Polo Grounds for a loss of one bag of groceries, one electric lantern and one man's sweater, value of the goods total about $34.50.

Lois Greenwald, 1330 E. Palm Canyon Drive, was parked at the lot of the M.F.K. Building where two men's sport coats, two suits, two pair of slacks and one yellow dress were stolen from the car, police said.

William Johnson Rites Wednesday

DESERT HOT SPRINGS—Private funeral services for William A. Johnson, 79, of 79-170 Montego Bay Drive, Bermuda Dunes, will be conducted Wednesday at 10 a.m. at the Desert Mortuary here. Cremation will follow at Montecito Memorial Park, San Bernardino.

Johnson died June 21 at the El Encanto Nursing Home. A native of England he had lived in California and in the desert area 13 years.

Officials said it would take some time to determine what went wrong with the switch at South Dakota's Fort Randall Dam, cutting off 320,000 kilowatts of power to two-thirds of Iowa and Nebraska and parts of South Dakota.

It was the first time the switch had been used, an Army Corps of Engineers official said.

Coupled with failure of a 100,000-kilowatt generator at Omaha, the interruption in power from the Fort Randall Dam caused power suppliers in adjoining states to "go flat."

The chain reaction was "like a line of dominoes," each causing another failure, one official said.

Omaha, Lincoln, Neb., Des Moines, Iowa, and other cities were cut off from service, but emergency systems throughout the area prevented serious trouble at hospitals and other institutions.

Strategic Air Command headquarters relied on its own emergency system and came through without incident.

At Omaha, thousands of persons walked the streets as everything from traffic lights to air conditioning went out.

They asked each other, "what happened? Why are the lights out? What does it mean?"

Police rushed from desk duties to jammed intersections to keep traffic moving.

"My electric typewriter would not work," a secretary said, "but not having air conditioning was worst of all." Windows closed since cooling units were installed three years ago, opened again. Hundreds of workers peered out at the streets from darkened offices.

Department stores closed their doors behind crowds described as "panicked but really orderly." However, one clerk noted "I sold six dresses after the power went off."

LATE SEASON tourists are still keeping hotels and businesses open both longer and busier than last season. The poolside chat seems to be one of the main hobbies for the visitors. This shot was taken at the President Hotel on Indian Avenue, where the owner says his business is up over 10 per cent from last year and is expected to hold up for several more weeks—another indication that Palm Springs' resort business may be expanding from its old winter confines.

OLD HABIT BROKEN?

Hot Weather Business Better?

By R. L. McCOWAN

Is business in Palm Springs falling at the rate the mercury is rising this year? Such is customary in the resort city, but recent weekends have given cause to wonder.

Checks with various hotels in the area have indicated that the old habit may be broken—business appears to be better than in previous years for this season.

To get a closer look at the recent influx of late-coming tourists, we had a talk with Stanley T. Speigelman, manager and owner of the President Hotel.

"Business is fine," he said, "up more than 10 per cent from last year, and we expect it to continue for several weeks. During the past three weeks we have received enough reservations during the week for Saturday and Sunday that we had to turn the people away that dropped in on us during the weekend.

"The more and more remodeling we do, the more guests we get. Last year we spent 25 to 30 thousand dollars, and the budget for next year is 15 thousand. By early October convention facilities for groups of 75 persons will be complete.

"I am really in favor of the high-rise project," Speigelman continued, "it will help make Palm Springs the place of paradise it should be. One other thing I would like to see is major air lines operating direct routes to us, rather than change at Los Angeles. Other than driving, transportation to Palm Springs is a long trip.

"With the tramway coming in next year we are becoming more and more a year-round resort, and the extra business this year aren't the only hotel in town."

City's Employees Delay Pay Drive

Palm Springs city employees on the reduced basis of two women officers — it being felt that higher pay pending the outcome of a salary survey to be conducted by the State Personnel Board.

City councilmen were so informed last night in letters from representatives of the police and fire departments and employees' association.

And the likelihood of increases from the board survey was recognized by the councilmen as they studied the budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

A recommendation by finance director Shelby Langford that an unappropriated reserve of $146,000 be retained in the budget to cover salary increases and other contingencies was unanimously retained.

At the same time the council tentatively voted partial approval to personnel additions that had been recommended.

Police Chief Gus Kettmann's request for three "meter maids" to patrol the city's parking meters, replacing patrolmen was approved.

Dean Martin Sues Studio Over Scrapped Picture

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Attorneys for Dean Martin said Monday the singer-actor filed a nearly $6 million countersuit against 20th Century Fox Studios charging defamation, conspiracy and breach of contract.

Martin's attorney, Arthur Groman, said three suits were filed against the studio involving the collapse of the movie, "Something's Got to Give" which was to costar Marilyn Monroe and Martin.

Miss Monroe was fired from the production and Lee Remick was named as her replacement, but Martin refused to work in the film without Marilyn.

Groman said, "Dean is suing for defamation based on release of statement by the studio that he violated his contract and that Fox failed to disclose to the public Dean's right of approval for his leading lady. That suit is a million dollars each for damages and punitive action."

"The second suit totals $2 million for conspiracy for putting the blame on the shutdown on Dean," Groman explained.

The attorney said a third suit filed by Martin's production company, Claude Productions, "is for the singer-actor filed a nearly $6 million countersuit against 20th Century Fox Studios charging defamation, conspiracy and breach of contract."

The studio sued Martin for $3,339,000 last week after it closed down the picture which had cost $2 million and was less than half completed. Fox charged Martin refused to continue the film with Miss Remick.

A studio spokesman said, "Martin's suing us for more than we're suing him. Maybe we ought to split the difference."

TV in Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — You've got to admire the guts on Sunday night's "TV Guide Award Show" on NBC-TV. It flatly named John Glenn's space flight over Jacqueline Kennedy's White House tour as best single news-information program of the year.

The recent Emmy awards were cowardly about the matter — hedging and putting the two programs into a separate, honorary classification.

The throbbing ladies who wait anxiously each week to be sneered at by "Ben Casey" will be saddened to know that, as at the Emmy awards, their favorite show was beaten by another top series — this time by "Bonanza."

"Casey," instead, was chosen as the favorite new series, and, as expected, its monotone hero, Vincent Edwards, was named favorite male performer. Sunday night's winners were chosen on the basis of their popularity with TV guide readers, who sent in ballots.

It was worth watching Sunday night's show if only to catch Art Carney's wildly funny imitation of Jack Paar at home. Others in the sketch included a newsboy named Hugh and a visiting couple named Kennedy. Mrs. Kennedy told Paar (Carney) she thought he should have been nominated for an award. "I like you," he replied.

Absolutely the best "award" show in memory was CBS-TV's 14th anniversary present Sunday night to Ed Sullivan: One hour of fast, funny, clean, imaginative and touching Vaudeville by Steve Allen, Jerry Lewis, Arthur and Kathryn Murray, Jack Carter, Jack Benny, Phil Silvers, Kate Smith, Johnny Carson, Lucille Ball, Red Buttons, Bing Crosby, Ted Mack, George Gobel and others.

Sullivan and his wife Sylvia sat in the audience during the tribute, which roasted him wonderfully. And one of the secrets to his success was obvious by watching his reactions: He simply loves the entertainment business — but with a professional love. There were fine sight gags — including one by Miss Ball, who made a sentimental speech and then was shown exiting on an elephant. And Sullivan made it a perfect hour by coming up and mangling his parting remarks — as usual.

Moderate Change May Be for Good

The Electoral College, the method by which we elect our presidents, is again under scrutiny. The new study now before the Congress has nothing in common with the demands to abolish it entirely such as were heard when President Kennedy squeaked into the White House by such a tiny margin two years ago.

The amendment to the Constitution now introduced would change the method of choosing the Electoral College. And when such conservative and cautious students of the Constitution as Senators Thurmond, Mundt, McClellan and Goldwater propose a Constitutional amendment, one has to be certain that it is being done with serious consideration.

In 1960 those who attacked the Electoral College demanded that it be abolished entirely. The critics urged the election of the president by popular vote.

The framers of the Constitution had this in mind when they established the Electoral College. They carefully planned a method which would protect smaller states from being overpowered by the large ones in presidential elections and to protect the nation from being herded into unwise choices. In their words, the Electoral College was set up to "elect a president and vice-president independent of popular passion."

The present proposal before the Congress would not lessen these protections but would, in the belief of the sponsors, weaken the influence of pressure groups which can now be exerted to sway the balance of power.

Under the present law a voter casts his ballot for an entire slate of electors and the slate that has a majority, if only by one vote, casts, its entire vote as a bloc. A minority group can thus concentrate its efforts on a few large states such as New York, Pennsylvania, California and Illinois and determine the national outcome. This can, and does, lead to political groups dedicating themselves to such pressure groups, offering socialistic, welfare or other schemes, to win their votes.

A number of senators have united to sponsor a proposed Constitutional amendment which would correct this situation. If approved, it would provide for choosing presidential electors in elector districts within each state.

S. J. Res. 12 provides that each voter cast his ballot for three electors, one from his own district and two at large just as he now votes for the state's representative in his district and two senators.

In California, for instance, now if one candidate wins a plurality in one more than half of the districts and the statewide vote, he receives the entire state state Electoral College vote as a bloc. According to the proposed amendment, he would receive only the Electoral College votes from the electoral districts he carried and the two-at-large if he won the statewide vote. The vote would be split and more truly the voice of the people.

It would be far more difficult for a pressure group to swing an election and it would not weaken the Electoral College, established as a buffer between states' rights and federal control of elections.

At the present speed of action the Congress is exhibiting, it is unlikely that the proposal will be acted upon before adjournment.

But the idea should not be allowed to die. It should come up for serious consideration before the 1964 elections.

'We Miscalculated'

We don't propose to argue that living in America today is life in the best of all possible worlds. We have plenty of problems. For example, we have for years, been confronted with the serious problem of raising more food-stuffs than our people can eat.

Trying to solve this problem has created headaches for Republican and Democratic administrations alike. It has given rise to economic waste, to dubious experiments in government controls, to charges of corruption within the Department of Agriculture whose unenviable task is to attempt to cope with the problem.

Currently, the present Secretary of Agriculture is advocating rigid acreage and production controls which would vastly increase the responsibility of the Federal government to determine how much of each basic crop should be produced each year. We hope Congress doesn't grant him these additional powers. For no matter how serious our farm problem is, we prefer it to Russia's.

In Russia, the government has been making all the decisions for years. And recently poor old Nikita Khrushchev had to bare his soul before the party faithful and declare: "We miscalculated."

As a result of government miscalculation, there isn't enough food to go around. And to keep people from eating too much it was necessary for the Soviet government to push up the price of meat and butter by 30 per cent. Just like that.

Yes, we have problems of our own. But we'd rather have problems of surplus than of scarcity. And let's not change the nature of our problems by aping the methods of totalitarian governments that substitute the decisions of bureaucrats for the decisions of the marketplace and then have to admit, periodically, that they miscalculated.

HOLMES ALEXANDER:

Reeducation of a President—II

WASHINGTON — Persons who go back to school in middle years are faster learners than the young. John Kennedy, 45, never attended, until quite recently, the well-known school of hard knocks. It will be educative for him if he continues these classes.

He needs to see Adlai Stevenson get his lumps and fade away. He needs to lose much legislation now pending on Capitol Hill. He needs to see Democratic seats reduced in November, but most of all he needs to see Brother Ted clattered in the Massachusetts Senate race. He needs to feel, as he does today, that he will have to be a real good boy to live down the reputation of being a business-buster.

If most of these things happen, something very astonishing could come about. Kennedy is a pragmatist. If he finds himself moving with a favorable tide of history, he will not try to check the tide. His administration may mark the end of the New Deal revolution that began exactly 20 years before the New Frontier. There are many such indications.

Tottering Joke

For despite much palaver to the opposite effect, the sixties today look more nationalist than internationalist. For 15 years after the end of World War II, roughly up to the sixties, the United Nations stood high. Today it is a tottering joke. Important administration senators want to downgrade UN Ambassador Stevenson. There used to be talk and planning of a "Union — Now" with Britain, and an Atlantic community. But knee-deep in the sixties, the USA is close to being invited out of France and West Germany, while Britain is anything but a welcome applicant for Common Market membership.

Fragmentation is the order. Nations are smaller, more numerous, more obnoxious than anybody would have predicted when Truman and Eisenhower were Presidents.

And—did you know that the influence of organized Labor is declining in the sixties? Those who understand these matters say so, and the indices uphold this opinion.

Not the First Choice

We forget that John Kennedy was not the first choice of the Demo-Laborites in 1960, and that Lyndon Johnson was anathema to Labor. Kennedy modified the Steelworkers' demand, he told the United Auto Workers they must be moderate, he set "guide lines" for wage rates based on productivity, he holds out for a 40-hour week while Labor leaders talk of 35 hours. Every Labor leader is committed to be an "inflationist" in demanding higher wages and more benefits for union members, but "inflation" has become a public hate-word. Soothsayers believe that Labor leaders, within the next two years, will get a forced diet of public disapproval.

All these are happy tidings, and I credit my introduction to them to an anti-intellectual professor, Dean Courtney Brown, of Columbia University's Graduate Business School. Dean Brown recently gave an interview to the Nation's Business magazine on the much-abused term called "the public interest." He believes that politicians were very poor judges of the public interest, and that businessmen were probably much better judges. Dean Brown said:

Survive and Prosper

"Every institution in a free society . . . will survive and prosper as long as it is performing a public service. When it ceases to perform a public service, it will not be long before the sanction is withdrawn."

This translates to mean, in my lingo, that the UN, which has lost so much public favor, and organized Labor, which is approaching the saturation point of what it can do in public service, are on the way out.

Corporations, on the other hand, are on a rising plane of public service. They are no longer run by an old-fashioned proprietor, but are owned by thousands of shareholders and are run by professional managers for the benefit of this multiple ownership. Profits are the means to new investment and to an improving economy.

Much of all this, I take it, is not generally known, and has just recently begun to seep into the Student Prince at the White House. To wish President Kennedy some more hard knocks, then, is to wish him an increasing wisdom.

THIS SIDE Of The Sun

R. F. "Phat" GRAETTINGER

Empty wallet in the old pants pocket. I shall not ride tonight. I'll look for something so I can hook it. I was the porters' delight.

I never was lonesome for Palm Springs on this trip. There was a constant reminder. Every day there were porters, red caps, waiters, with whom hope springs eternal. And they all had outstretched palms.

IT'S NICE to get back to this old typewriter with its battle-worn "I" key, its paper clips, assorted screws and nuts plus some tape, which hold it together. It's nice to be able to stand toe to toe with the keyboard and slug it out instead of having to hold my punches like a with that delicate portable.

That compact contraption was reasonable on a firm foundation but on the train it would not roll with the curves. Right in the middle of a word I had trouble spelling anyway, it would start to slither off the table the kind man had set up for me — at so much per set-up. Other set-ups cost, too.

THE SERVICE on the trains was wonderful. But I have two recommendations.

(a) A compass in each car, at least, in the Club Car. Then you wouldn't have to believe that either you are, or the sun is, a kook.

(b) A set of clocks showing standard and daylight time, if any, in the time zone you happen to be in. That would stop a lot of futile arguments and straighten out confused old ladies.

FOR INSTANCE, let's consider (a). You're up early so that you can have more time to spend in the dome car looking at the colorful rocks, thick green forests and foaming rivers.

It looks like you're heading eastward going from Chicago to California. So what in the so-and-so is the sun doing, hanging low in the west at 7:30 a.m.? You're going south and the sun's due north. Or north, the sun straight south. Either the sun or you are mixed up kids. It's 1000 to 1 you are.

THEN, TAKE (b), another cause of frustration. The time table instructs you to set your watches back an hour at North Platte, Neb. All of the women dutifully do. Then they wrangle with the conductor and the porter, vowing that the train is running an hour late. They forget that there is no daylight time in the mountain states and there is in Chicago. So they're an hour off, a fruitful source of argument.

Mrs. G had to restrain me frequently from hooting in with some sound advice. "It's none of your business," she's say. "Besides, you're looked before you start. They look like the determined type who never are wrong. Go brag about Palm Springs to that man over in the corner. He's from Florida, he says."

IT'S THE FIRST TIME she ever encouraged me to brag. Usually she shushes me. She says she doesn't want people to think I'm a bore.

She's on the losing side.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN:

Dear Abby . . .

YOU CAN'T WIN—ALWAYS!

DEAR ABBY: Since the track opened up I am without a boyfriend. To tell you the truth I have been stood up by a horse. He spends all his time doting the races and then he stays around the track every day the horses are running. You know you can't get hold of a man when he's at the track all the time. When the track is closed he is wonderful.

Should I date the nice non-betting man who lives in my apartment? My boyfriend tells me he can't help it if he has horses' blood in his veins. —STOOD UP BY A HORSE

DEAR STOOD: Date the nice non-betting man in your building. He might not win, but I'll bet he can place and show. And when your horse lover calls you after the racing season, tell him "you've" got horse blood in your veins, too—and say "may."

DEAR ABBY: I wish you, or one of your readers, would explain to me what a "double greenback" shower is. I received an invitation to one last week and haven't recovered yet. It is being sponsored by the "grooms" parents. Someone told me it means that the guests are expected to give money to both the bride and groom. I can't believe it! Begging, that's what it is. Heaven help us! —PROUD

DEAR PROUD: Yes, a "double greenback" shower is indeed an invitation to give money to both bride and groom. And you don't have to accept every invitation you get.

DEAR ABBY: I've noticed that when you get adverse comments on your opinions, you are fair enough to print them. Well, recently, you ran a letter from a man whose wife spent hours reading the Bible and copying verses from it. He complained, "She tries to convert all our friends who are already non-drinking, church-going people." And you advised him to take her to a doctor!

I infer that you are also one of those "non-drinking, church-going people" who feels that religion consists of just that. You do not realize that there can be a life lived in vital contact with God. It makes one a different person. No doubt this woman has had that experience, and is eager to share it with others. I've had it, too. And it wouldn't bother me one bit if you printed my name. —MRS. DAYTON YOUNG, Fort Smith, Arkansas

DEAR ABBY: I am sitting here with the tears running down my face. I raised two sons and a daughter. I worked my fingers to the bone for them. I wore torn shoes so they could dress nicely. I scrimped and saved to make payments on cars for them. And you know that on Mother's Day not "one" of them even sent me a card or called me up? —HEARTBROKEN

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: Wipe the tears off your face, Mother. All most mothers get for their sacrifice is the "joy" of sacrificing. You will find "appreciation" in the dictionary.

How's the world treating you? For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to "Abby", care of this paper.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to "Abby", Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

SCIENCE TODAY

Hoarders Save to Ward Off Fear by Possessions

NEW YORK (UPI) — The person who merely accumulates possessions is a type unto himself, said Dr. Richard H. Phillips, whose scientific field is people. He is not a saver. Thrift has nothing to do with it. He is not a hoarder. Hoarders ward off fears with possessions. Nor is he a collector. Collections bolster the minds of collectors.

The accumulator, said Phillips, is basically an indecisive person. He won't commit himself to a clear, realistic understanding of himself — and this accounts for his special attitude toward possessions.

Accumulators are common among people; hence the scientific interest in Phillips' efforts to say what makes them tick. He was adding a new term to the scientific vocabulary, by the way. Therefore science has not distinguished accumulators from collectors.

Accumulators may confuse you by calling themselves collectors but they're entirely different. "The collector is disturbed by empty spaces which ought to be filled," Phillips said "the accumulator is plagued by full spaces which ought to be emptied."

Collectors take great pride in their collections which have been carefully chosen and classified, with each item somehow related to all the others. An accumulator's accumulation is a hodgepodge which has been "acquired and retained with a real avoidance of any kind of definitive thinking."

And his "relationship to his objects is not one of pride and pleasure but rather one of displeasure and mild shame. He rarely exhibits his objects. Instead he attempts to hide them in the attic, cellar, closet or garage." Meanwhile, he is excusing himself to himself by trying to believe that "one day these things may come in handy."

Displeased With Accumulation
The accumulator is displeased with his accumulation because it is a nuisance, Phillips went on. His sense of shame comes from the suspicion that he is being foolish or that other people will think the accumulating of useless objects is "peculiar."

"There is in the possessions which any individual acquires and retains an element of self-definition," Phillips said in reporting his work to the American Medical Association. "In classifying an object as 'appropriate-to-me' or 'inappropriate-to-me' he commits himself. Each time a person throws something away or actively acquires something new he is operating in terms of his self-concept."

Shaky Self-Concept
And that's the trouble with accumulators — they have a shaky are no longer useful or refrain from taking on new possessions for which they have no use.

He recalled that when Mahatma Gandhi died his possessions amounted only to a watch, spectacles, sandals, two books, a pitcher, three figurines, a knife two bowls and two spoons.

"And Gandhi was certainly one of the most simply, clearly and completely self-defined men in the history of mankind," said Phillips who is a member of the faculty of the State University of New York at Syracuse.

Self-concept at best, and so they can't make up their minds to throw away possessions which

THIS GROUP of Little League ball players are members of the P.S. Water Co. team who finished on top of the standings at the close of the regular season play. During the 14 game schedule they won 9, lost 4 and tied 1. In their first play-off game for the Sears' City Championship Trophy they were nipped, 6-4, by the Hathaway Braves. Friday evening they take the field against the same team and will try to even the series with the Braves.

Braves Edge Water Co. In First Tilt, 6 to 4

Winners of the city Little League during the regular season play, the P.S. Water Co., suffered their first defeat in the opening round of the city play-offs as the Hathaway Braves turned seven hits into six runs for a 6-4 win.

Greg Tarr, the winning hurler for the Braves, allowed the league winners only six hits during the six inning game as his teammates were producing six runs for the victory.

In the second tilt of the evening in the 1962 playoffs, the runner-up team in the Little League standings, the Jr. Police team pulled out all stops and clobbered the Simsarian nine, 16-4, to register their first win in the play-off series.

The Jr. Police stickmen nipped the Simsarian hurler for 17 hits while the winning hurler, Jerry Lewis, gave up only five hits to the losers. Al Hopkins hit a home run for the Simsarian team in a losing cause.

These same four teams will take to the diamond again Friday evening in another play-off round with the same clubs meeting again. The first game is slated to start at 7 p.m. between the Jr. Police nine and the Simsarian club.

Giants Dump Reds, 3-1, On O'Dell's 5 Hitter

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Sud- denly it's spring—last spring that is—when manager Alvin Dark of the San Francisco Giants rarely needed to look toward his bullpen.

Remember those plush days of late April and early May when seven consecutive Giants starters went the distance as the team roared off on a 10-game winning streak.

It's started all over again. Billy O'Dell became the third straight Giants hurler to go the route when he pitched them to a classy, 3-1 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds Monday.

The win also was the third in a row for resurgent San Francisco, which tries to extend the streak tonight when Jack Sanford (7-6) tangles with Cincy's Joey Jay (10-7).

O'Dell limited the Reds to five singles while ending a losing streak of his own that had reached three. Fine base-running by Willie Mays and good fielding on the part of Willie McCovey were the key factors that lifted O'Dell's mark to 8-6.

Mays, possibly the man most responsible for keeping the Giants in second place and only a half game behind Los Angeles, accounted for the go ahead run in the third inning.

After reaching first safely on a fielder's choice, Willie went to second on a hard single by McCovey, stole third on pitcher Jim Maloney then came home when Orlando Cepeda hit a sacrifice fly.

That broke a 1-1 tie. The Gi-

'Bo' vs. Bosox In Beantown

BOSTON (UPI)—Chatterbox Bo Belinsky leads the Los Angeles Angels against the Boston Red Sox tonight in the opener of a three-game series at Fenway Park.

Belinsky (7-2), who appears to be rekindling his early season sparkle, will face Earl Wilson (5-2) of Boston. Wilson will be out to stop the Angels, who have dumped the beanthrowers six straight this year.

Belinsky, the wisecracking southpaw from Trenton, N.J., holds the distinction of being the only hurler to go the distance at Boston this year.

Both clubs picked up double-header victories in their last outing. Boston won its first twinnin' of the season Sunday by dumping Baltimore twice, and the Angels clipped the second place Minnesota Twins in the final innings of their dual wins.

Hottest batter in the Twins series in Minneapolis was little Albie Pearson, who blistered the ball at a .450 clip. Billy Moran homered in both games Sunday when the Angels collected their fifth doubleheader sweep this season.

Leon Wagner contributed his 20th home run of the year the same day to hold on to his lead in the American League. Norm Cash of Detroit trails Wagner with 19 roundtrippers.

Wagner is also second in the runs batted in department with 54, only two runs behind leader Floyd Robinson of the Chicago White Sox.

CUTS NL LEAD TO 1/2 GAME

Dodgers Lose to Braves, 6-4

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The pitching problems of the Los Angeles Dodgers mounted today as the team's bull pen lost its snap to add to the troubles manager Walt Alston has been facing with his starters.

The relief pitchers took the blame for Monday night's 6-4 loss to the Milwaukee Braves. The defeat was the fourth in the last five games and left the Dodgers only a half a game ahead of the San Francisco Giants.

There was one bright note for the Dodgers, however, in the hitting of outfielder Tommy Davis, who came to bat five times Monday night and hit four singles and a double.

The five hits raised his batting average to .342 which tied him with Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals for the National League lead. He also held the lead in total hits with 103 and runs batted in with 75.

But for the Braves, their two veterans, Hank Aaron and Eddie Mathews, drove in five of the six runs. Aaron homered with Mathews on base in the sixth. It was his 17th home run of the season, fourth against the Dodgers and fifth of the current road trip, including a pair of grand slams. Mathews drove in a pair of runs on three hits in four times at bat, despite a stiff neck and sore shoulder.

The Braves' relief pitching was effective while that of the Dodgers was not.

"Of course I am concerned over our pitching problems," Alston said, "but I see no reason to get panicky."

Ron Perranoski, who took over in the seventh for starter Joe Moeller, was charged with the defeat. He gave up a pair of singles to allow the two men Moeller put on base to score, and then Larry Sherry relieved him and gave up two more singles to allow the game-winning run to come home. For tonight's renewal of the Braves - Dodgers rivalry, Sandy Koufax, 10-3, is scheduled to oppose Milwaukee's Lew Burdette, 5-4, who currently has a five game winning streak after a slow start.
